

CALL FOR POSTERS * CALL FOR POSTERS * CALL FOR POSTERS

Northern California Botanists is hosting a symposium on January 8-9, 2024, to be held at the Bell Memorial Union located on the CSU, Chico campus. A 2-day schedule of presentations by working botanists from around the North State will provide updates and perspectives on Locally Rare Plants, Vegetation Classification, Bryophytes, Climate Change, New Discoveries, and Now the Good News, all emphasizing the northern part of California. There will be optional workshops on January 10.

The NCB symposium planning committee invites you to bring a poster to share your work and knowledge of the biology, ecology, conservation or management of our Northern California plant life with others. Please forward this invitation to botanists and others with related interests from Northern California agencies, conservation organizations, consulting firms and academia. This will be a great opportunity for continuing education and networking, especially during the Tuesday dedicated, scheduled poster session.

BRING A POSTER TO DISPLAY YOUR WORK!!!

Poster author or one designated representative must be registered symposium attendee.

Topics: Northern California botanical work including research, management efforts, plant conservation issues, special places of botanical interest, new information (see topics in agendas for previous Symposia for ideas)
